

HUMANITY

The world has been corrupted by an unstoppable disease

It put chemicals in the land and oil in the seas

Every day it festers and grows

More seeds of the reckoning it sows

The terror began no less than 200,000 years ago

And since then it has been pushing the world to a state this low

With its fanaticism, selfishness and innumerable flaws

It survived as a rebel, breaking all natural laws

Wars, famines, destruction and more

Uncountable tragedies it has abhorred

But it masked them under a cape known as advancement

Truly only the fear of acceptance and resentment

Of the fact that if only we turn to the mirror we will see,

The disease is nothing but humanity