The waiter returned to take their order.

Their host responded on behalf of the group.

"Do you not have some tables and chairs for us to sit on."

"No sir," the waiter replied, "many around the world do not have these luxuries. Therefore, we do not have any".

"Ah, I see; why are there no starters listed for us to choose from."

"Sir, we pride ourselves in giving our customers an authentic experience of world cuisine; the majority of the population have no food for starters; therefore, none offered."

"Ok, err, the choices for the main are rather sparse."

"True, Sir, they are." leftovers?" the host asked.

This choice is rarely available; it is unusual for any food to be left uneaten."

"I dread to ask about Depends on what is in the rubbish bins, although I do need to ask."

"Often desperation to put food out for the family, especially the children, scrapes from the rubbish bins are a lot better than having a child crying from hunger."

"I think I can understand the last choice, Food Bank Donations. Is this an everyday need"?

"Sir, yes, demand is increasing all over the world, food donation charities stretched to beyond their normal limits."

"And you got to be kidding choice for deserts. If there is little food for the main meal, however small that meal is, nothing at all for dessert."

The waiter just nodded his head at this comment.

"Understanding your menu better now it is Authentic World Cuisine.

"The contaminated River Water.

"Fresh, clean water is rare in many areas of the world. Most take water from contaminated sources."

"What's this about a cover charge, even if we do not eat."

"It's our way of helping those who need help. The cover charge is a small amount to pay to help others in need."

The group left wiser, a little lighter in their wallets.
